

Hunting is not a matter of life and death.
It is much more important than that.

DEAR FRIENDS,

I'm writing this letter while sitting in a ground blind hunting deer with one of our students. As we sit here together, the statement above is running through my mind and I'm suddenly struck by the truth of it. It's a phrase printed on a funny little plaque (a gift from a friend) that I keep near my desk. While it's original intent was, of course, to humorously prioritize hunting over other more important aspects of life, at moments like these, hunting season truly does hold special importance. So often it's more than just a time to pursue game and sharpen skills- it's a time to build real camaraderie and share quality time out in creation together. We can celebrate successes, and learn from and laugh about our mistakes. We can sit quietly and reflect - something kids rarely have the chance to do. We often have conversations about life, school, friends, family, relationships, faith and our relationship with God. It's a time to enjoy something much more interesting and complex than an xbox, ipad or smart phone. Time spent in the field can sometimes be a sacred time that is more important than life and death, it's about eternity.
